Update of my situation 1/17/26

Hey, this is a note for both my Copis (my community) and anyone who simply wants to know why I suddenly stopped streaming (again).

Sadly, I am in a situation where I fear for my life, due to receiving death-threats from a family member, for refusing to pay for their debts. I was told I should leave my home immediately or they will come and kill us.

But this is a problem that kept growing for many years prior:
This person was in charge of using the household funds to pay for anything that must be paid.
But the reality was that this family member was using our fundings / salary to buy illicit stuff (I would rather not disclose further) and then lying about paying for things responsibly. This person did not have a job or savings, nor did have any intentions to get a job since "it gave them a lot of anxiety".

Naively, we trusted they would overcome the anxiety, and insisted on prioritizing paying the essentials and saving the rest of the money to save it in case of an emergency.
We find out that our savings were severely reduced without our knowledge, and that there were a ton of debts to be paid. This person excused themselves that "we spend more than we think" and "debt is normal considering I (me, viaprika) do a lot of streaming" (stating that I consume a lot of internet and power).

But in the present, we found out they used our money wrongly and almost left us bankrupt, so we decided to secretly start searching for a place to move without them. But before we could do it, we received these death-threats, forcing us to flee and find a temporary place to survive. They still expect (and demands us) to pay for their debts claiming they are actually ours.

I currently don't have the resources to stream, but I can still work on art commissions to save as much money as possible. I'm afraid this person will find out where we are hiding, come and we might have to call the police.

I believe we will move out to our permanent place the first days of February, highly possible I would be able to stream again.
These past years were pretty rough and I know this is just a small portion of what happened to me, and many crucial details were excluded for privacy manners, I still hope you can understand the situation regardless.

Thank you for reading and for your patience and for supporting me even if I have a rough life, I will never give up streaming, even if I would've to start over.
